THE NEWARK ADVOCATE BOOKLOVERS' CONTEST WILL SOON START

Many Dollars Worth of Valuable Prizes Will Soon be Announced

First Prize Is $500.00 IN GOLD

ALL OUR READERS CAN COMPETE ON EQUAL TERMS.

No Entrance Fee---No Canvassing To Do

As this is not a money-making contest, but intended as a delightful and educative amusement for the great family of The Newark Advocate, the Booklovers' Contest requires no entrance fee whatever from any one who competes in it. There is nothing to pay. There is no red tape nor complicated conditions. You need not even subscribe for the paper in order to share equally in the opportunities of the contest with those who are subscribers. Read the rules on this page. They explain fully.

Unlike so many contests advertised by newspapers, The Booklovers' Contest of The Newark Advocate does not require any collection of ballots, nor any canvassing of your friends so that you may be sure of winning. Simply use your brain and your wits, follow the rules, and if your answers to the 70 pictures are correct you are certain of winning a prize. Again we say—read the rules. They tell you how simple the contest is and how easy it will be to compete successfully.

Open To Everyone---Many People Can Win

Whether a regular reader of The Advocate or not, any one, old or young, rich or poor, may compete in the Booklovers' Contest, provided he or she lives in either Licking, Delaware, Knox, Coshocton, Muskingum, Perry or Franklin counties, Ohio. People living outside of these counties may not compete, but any one in them can. As stated elsewhere, no entry fee is required, no subscription is necessary, and the contest is absolutely free to every man, woman or child living in the territory named. Watch for the announcement of the first picture, which will appear in these columns within a few days. Get a catalogue from The Advocate and start even with the other contestants.

Many dollars' worth of valuable prizes, including $500.00 in gold and many desirable gifts, such as musical instruments, furniture, clothing, jewelry, etc., will make up the array of awards. There will be numerous prizes. Therefore many people are certain to win a prize worth having, if they supply the right answers to the pictures in this contest. A committee of Newark men of the highest standing will award the prizes fairly and squarely.

What Does This Picture Mean?

What a Booklovers' Contest is

This is not a guessing game, not a lottery, but a competition of wits. It is an educational enterprise in which brains and keen insight will succeed—Not merely blind luck! Any one, young or old, will have an absolutely fair and square opportunity to win a valuable reward without a penny's outlay. Each contestant will start on absolutely equal terms; and every one will be judged impartially, simply upon the merits and correctness of the answers.

The idea is to discover the correct titles suggested by a series of 70 pictures, each picture representing the name of a book, similar to the picture shown in the right. The particular picture shown here will not be counted in the contest, but is published just to give an idea of what the contestants will have to study. The book meant by this picture was the first great success of a famous British novelist, and its title is as familiar to you as any book's name could be. Study the picture for a few minutes and the title will fairly leap out at you.

Those who discover the greatest number of titles properly belonging to these 70 pictures will win the prizes provided they follow the rules as printed on the facing page.

The winner may not happen to send in half the right titles of the series. It is not necessary to have a college education, nor be widely read in modern literature, to stand the best possible chance of winning a valuable prize in the great contest. Simply common sense and sharp wits are needed.

The first picture will be printed very shortly, due announcement of its coming appearance being made in these columns. From that time on one picture and coupon will be printed every publication day until 70 have appeared. Start when the first picture appears and stick to the contest until the 70th picture is published. Then—and not until then—send in your replies written on our coupons. If you are any way near correct in your solutions you are likely to win a prize of great value.

No person living will alone know the right answers.

Therefore you have the positive and honorable guarantee of The Advocate that every person who enters this Booklovers' Contest will receive an absolutely square deal and have a fair and equal opportunity to win the largest or any other prize to be awarded.

If any one of the five answers that may be given to any picture is correct, the contestant will be credited for that chance.

Prizes will be awarded to every contestant, up to 30 or more who sends in the largest number of correct answers upon the smallest number of coupons. Thus, if a contestant gives the correct answer to 50 pictures, and uses only 70 coupons, that contestant will rate highest in the prize awards, than one who uses 140 coupons (or any higher number up to 350) for supplying the 70 correct answers.

If two or more persons, supplying the same number of correct answers, have used the same number of coupons for their answers, the highest rating will be given to the one whose answers are most neatly prepared, in the opinion of the judges.

No contestant will be allowed to submit more than one set of answers, which must include not less than 70 nor more than 350 coupons, with the accompanying pictures.

Positively no solutions may be sent in to the contest editor until every one of the 70 pictures has been printed. Answers in complete sets, as just specified above, will then be received in this office, and should be addressed to "Contest Editor," Booklovers' Contest, Advocate, Newark, Ohio. The awards will be made strictly according to the correctness of each set of answers, and that correctness shall be determined by the Finding List, or Catalogue issued by us as governing this Booklovers' Contest. This catalogue can be obtained from The Advocate office, and will include, in its 3,000 titles, every one used in the contest.

Awards will be announced in this newspaper after the close of the contest.

Any person may compete in this contest who lives in either Licking, Delaware, Knox, Muskingum, Coshocton, Perry or Franklin Counties, Ohio, except employees of The Newark Advocate or members of their families.

Answers to the pictures must be written upon the coupon blank which will be printed every day with each picture during the seventy publication days the contest will last. Both picture and blank must be clipped from the paper, and the blank properly filled in with the name of the book and the author's name together with the name and address of the contestant written clearly and plainly in the space provided. Not more than one person's name may be written on any coupon.

Each picture will represent the title of only one book, but there may be some pictures that suggest titles of several books. For the benefit of contestants, and to allow for this variety of solutions, any contestant may give as many as five answers to any picture, at will; but not more than one solution may be written on any coupon. If the contestant gives two answers as likely to include the correct one two coupons must be used; if three answers, three coupons must be used; and so on.

In each instance, whether the contestant gives one answer or five answers to any picture, both the picture and the coupon must be used for each of the answers; and not more than five answers to any picture will be permitted.

The Panama Exposition and Europe.

Entertaining, feeding and swindling the American tourist is one of the chief industries of Europe. Our travellers spend hundreds of millions over there yearly. They leave a trail of prosperity wherever there is a ruin, an art gallery, or burial place of a noted man.

The tax on our travellers abroad for the minutiae of life, often for soap in the hotel and the napkin in the restaurant, reaches the point of extortion. But our people swallow irritation at slippery haggling, and pay down their stream of coins with characteristic American good nature.

One would think the European governments would feel a reciprocal interest in our enterprises, a willingness to spend a little money in advertising at such affairs as the Panama exposition.

These governments have been very grudging about this show. Sulky indifference will not promote the tourist industry. But gradually they are "coming across." The Italian government indicated a willingness to exhibit the past week. Probably most of the others will be on hand.

This big show will be visited by hosts of Americans in easy financial circumstances, who have never crossed the seas. One would think their favor was worth having from the most selfish viewpoint. Our people buy woollens and silks freely in Europe, and have just enacted a new tariff giving liberal privileges of competition.

Even if exhibits of manufactured goods do not pay, one would think it would be a business proposition to put up buildings or model villages giving suggestions of European romance, historic scenes and ways of living. If a few enterprising Americans were put in charge of entertaining our tourists abroad, they would have such exhibits permanently located in every large city.

A bill has passed congress to double farm productiveness, but the farmers are independent and might not take the increase if their neighbors were going to get it, too.

The mills may have laid off a good many laborers, but business will never be wholly bad as long as a full force of lawyers is kept busy fighting the anti-trust suits.

Uncle Walt

Methuselah.

Nine hundred years, and then a few, Methuselah hung on. He kicked around as good as new when all his friends were gone. He saw the generations rise and live and meet their doom. He saw the brave, the good, the wise, all gathered to the tomb. The tribes of both the hemispheres drank from Death's bitter cup, and still, for almost countless years, the Reaper passed him up. And, doubtless, in the twilight gray, this man, still hale and strong, would tell his visitors the way he stayed on earth so long. "I always sleep up in a tree," methinks I hear him cry. "no musty sleeping-rooms for me! They make the people die I walk twelve miles before the bells have summoned me to toll; my breakfast is of walnut shells washed down with castor oil. I turn ten handsprings every hour, and stand upon my head, and drink three quarts of milk that's sour before I go to bed. The man who'd live must never cease his exercises hard; I rub my joints with axle grease and wash my feet in lard. I steam my head three times a day, which is a goodly plan; my dinner is a bale of hay, my lunch a pail of bran. I think the people are but fools who young, lie down and die; if you'll adopt my simple rules, you'll live as long as I." The old man's hearer, startled much, no doubt in wonder cries: "The mantle of Doc Woody Hutch upon his shoulders lies!"

Human Procession

Nathan Straus, the noted Jewish philanthropist and New York merchant prince who retired from business this month in order to devote his entire time to the development of his great Palestine projects, was born in Rhenish, Bavaria, sixty-six years ago Sunday. He is one of three sons of Lazarus Straus, who came to America three score years ago and settled in Georgia, later removing to New York, where all three won fame and fortune. The elder brother, Isidor, perished in the wreck of the Titanic.

Nathan Straus has just severed his active connection with the great New York and Brooklyn department stores which were the basis of his fortune. For a quarter of a century he has been actively engaged in various philanthropies, and thousands of young people in the American metropolis owe their lives to the system of sterilized milk distribution stations established by him in 1890.

The Palestine projects to which the great merchant proposes to dedicate the remainder of his life are the most ambitious of his career. An ardent Zionist, Mr. Straus hopes to make the seat of his ancient race again a center of culture and civilization. Already Mr. Straus has made a start by establishing a health board in Jerusalem, a relief station for the poor, a branch of the Pasteur institute, and an organization of American nurses who will educate the people in matters of hygiene. The Pasteur institute will wage war on the contagious diseases which are the scourge of Palestine, and in the course of time, he expects to make the holy land one of the healthiest countries in the world. All of this work is non-sectarian, and Moslems and Christians are welcomed to partake of its benefits quite as readily as Jews.

Another important project in the movement for the modernization of Palestine is the various trades and fitted to support themselves. It is the belief of Mr. Straus that education such as this, together with the stamping out of the preventable diseases which now ravage the population, will make Palestine blossom as the rose. Mr. Straus' investigators have found that malaria, rabies and trachoma, the terrible ailments can be prevented by proper sanitary precautions and diet. Semi-starvation prevails throughout Palestine, especially in the cities, and this has been partially relieved by the establishment of the Straus soup kitchens in Jerusalem, where soup and bread are served free to all applicants. Those who are able to work are given employment in the Straus workshops, where buttons and beads are made from the sea shells, the entire proceeds of the industry going to the workers.

While devoting much attention to the rejuvenation of the holy land and its people, the eminent Jewish philanthropist will not forget that "charity begins at home," and his work of saving the lives of infants in New York and other cities will be carried on with greater vigor than ever. The death rate among infants using the milk supplied by the Straus laboratories has been reduced by as much as fifty per cent., and Mr. Straus now proposes to start an educational campaign for a world-wide adoption of the pasteurization principle. What has been accomplished in New York will be brought to the attention of health boards, physicians, educators and social workers in all the large cities of the world. "Save the babies" is to be the slogan of the movement. Mr. Straus built up two of the largest mercantile establishments in the world by a liberal use of newspaper advertising space, coupled with fair and honest dealing, and both as merchant and philanthropist he is a man of whom his race, and all Americans regardless of race, may well feel proud.

Commission Which Now Heads the U. S. Reclamation Service

Instead of being headed by one man, as has been the case previously, to this Administration, the U. S. Reclamation Service is now directed by a commission of five men, appointed by Secretary of the Interior Lane. These men will be held responsible for results in the service. This picture shows the entire commission in session. These men direct the average monthly expenditure of the service of $1,000,000. Left to right around the table are: Arthur P. Davis, Chief Engineer; W. A. Ryan, Controller; I. D. O'Donnell, Supervisor of Irrigation; Judge Will R. King, Chief Counsel; F. H. Newell, Director of the Commission, and Secretary of the Interior Franklin R. Lane.

HINTS ON HEALTH AND EXERCISE.

(The author of these "Hints" is recognized as one of the world's foremost authorities on the subjects of physical culture and athletic training, and his advice is based on an experience of eighteen years.)

The campaign recently conducted by a New York newspaper to have the Metropolitan Art Museum opened in the evenings, so that those employed during the day might have an opportunity to enjoy its treasures, should appeal to physical culturists, as well as those who advocate the innovation on intellectual and esthetic grounds. The relation between art and music, and the development of an appreciation of both, is closer than it may seem at first thought. The sane and normal mind finds its fit habitation in a sound, healthy and beautiful body. What greater incentive and inspiration to physical improvement and well-rounded muscular development could be found than a study of the great works of the master sculptors and artists of the past and present? Artists do not choose weaklings for their models, but strong, perfectly formed, magnificent and virile specimens of manhood and womanhood. The sculptors of ancient Greece found models in the youths who participated in the Olympic games, and, in turn, the athletes were encouraged to seek a nobler and more perfect physical development by the work of the sculptors. Art and athletics inspired each other in that distant period when Greece was great. During my experience of eighteen years as a trainer and body-builder I have come across many young men who have been shamed into undertaking the task of bodily development by "odious comparisons" between their own insignificant physiques and the perfect sculptured figures shown at museums and art galleries. Americans, especially the inhabitants of great cities, are rapidly degenerating into a race of weaklings, with flabby muscles, jumpy nerves, narrow chests, round shoulders and spindling legs and arms. This is true largely because they lack the inspiration of the ideal, such as is supplied by the works of the great sculptors. This is a phase of the usefulness of art museums to which little attention has been paid, and yet it is highly important.

Young men who are ambitious to shine as runners next spring and summer should begin now to get into condition. A morning or evening walk of three miles or so, at a brisk pace, should be taken to begin with. Do not walk directly after eating. About two hours should elapse after meals before beginning active exercise. Breathe deeply and fully as you walk, filling the lungs with fresh air, which not only develops the lungs but strengthens the heart action and invigorates the whole system. After a few days of walking change the pace to an easy jog, not too fast, and cover about the same distance. This should be followed by a shower or sponge-bath, using cold water, and a thorough rub-down and kneading of the muscles. After a few days of jogging, begin walking again, extending the distance to five miles. Later the five miles can be covered at a jog trot. Don't extend yourself to the limit, nor subject yourself to undue strain. For this winter work is preparatory and is designed to maintain your general health and to keep your muscles limber and active. As to diet, the same rule applies to runners as to the other athletes. Eat meals at regular hours—each meal at exactly the same time each day, if possible. Substantial, nutritious, well-cooked food is demanded. The idea that a runner must have a strict and faddish diet is nonsense. Of course indigestible foods should be tabooed, as well as tobacco and alcohol. Unless the candidate for running honors be in bad condition, and burdened with surplus fat, to begin with, this preparatory work should not cause any decrease in weight. Rather, after the first week or two, there should be a slight gain. Go to bed early and get enough sleep. By following these directions, the runner will be in fine condition to begin real training for either a sprint or a Marathon.

We are now so accustomed to the athletic woman that we accept her as Christians, both Catholic and Protestant, in the United States, and about 1,100,000 Jews who retain allegiance to the ancient faith.

Canada is vastly more religious than the United States, as the last census shows that of the 7,208,643 inhabitants of the Dominion, less than 4,000 are professedly hostile to the Christian faith. This is all the more remarkable in view of the large French population of Canada. In France, hostility to Christianity and all supernatural religions, which had its beginning with Voltaire and the other great freethinkers of the eighteenth century, has grown until the government and the people are permeated with the spirit of free-thought. French-Canadians have remained aloof from this movement, and practically all of them have remained true to the old faith.

The Roman Catholic church leads in membership in both the United States and Canada. Methodists stand second in the Union and third in the Dominion. Baptists have third place in the United States, and fifth in Canada. Lutherans come fourth in the United States and sixth in Canada. Presbyterians second in Canada, are fifth in the United States, and Anglicans, fourth in Canada, are seventh in the United States.

ABSENCE.

SOMETHING is missing in the sky and sea;
Something is lacking in the daisy's grace;
Something has vanished from the mystic charm
Which erstwhile haunted each familiar place.

The east wind drives the white surf to my feet,
From north and south the merry winds blow free,
The south wind whispers songs I once held sweet,
But not one brings a message back to me.

Something is missing in the sky and sea,
Something has stolen from the sun its gold,
And something dumbly waits within my heart
Until the hours of parting shall be told.

A GOOD FEATURE

While we issue Certificates of Deposit drawing 4 per cent, interest on which is paid by check each six months, we feel that this form of investment is best only for those who know that they will need the income from their savings as fast as it is earned.

For most people it is preferable to open a regular savings account, where the interest is figured each six months, but not paid in cash unless requested.

The interest on these accounts can always be drawn in cash if you desire, but if not withdrawn it is credited to you on your account and AT ONCE BEGINS TO EARN COMPOUND INTEREST.

The tendency with a savings account is to let the interest accumulate, while with any other investment where interest is paid in cash, the tendency is to spend it.

That is why we recommend the pass book account as best for the average saver.

SOCIAL AFFAIRS

Mrs. Will Downey entertained the members of the M. H. club in her home in Wallace street, Thursday afternoon. The early part of the afternoon was taken up by the regular business session and election of officers for the next year. The rest of the time was spent in social conversation and music. An elaborate two course luncheon was enjoyed by all. The next meeting will be with Mrs. S. A. Ryan in North Fourth street, Friday 25.

Mr. C. F. Campbell, executive officer of the Ohio State Commission for the Blind, and Mr. Arthur Kellogg of Columbus, who furnished the entertainment for the board of health exhibit, were entertained at the home of the Misses Elchorn in West Church street, Thursday evening. A six o'clock dinner was served.

CLAGGETT-HUGHES.
On Wednesday evening, January 23, at 5 o'clock, at the parsonage of the Jefferson Avenue M. E. church by the Rev. Arthur Smith, occurred the marriage of Miss Nellie Connette Hughes, only daughter of Mrs. Annie Hughes, of West Chestnut street, and Ernest D. Claggett of Columbus, Ohio. The bride, who was unattended, was handsomely gowned in white satin draped with white silk marquisette and lace, and carried white brides' roses. The ring ceremony was used. Only the immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties were present. After a wedding dinner at the home of the bride's mother, the newly wedded couple left on the 6:40 train for a trip including Cleveland, Cincinnati and other points. They will be at home after March 1 at Columbus, O., where the groom is employed as a railway mail clerk.—Washington, Pa., Reporter.

Mr. Claggett is well known in Newark, his home being at Hanover. He is also a member of the local Lodge of Elks.

One of the most delightful banquets ever held by the members of the Coterie club was that given on Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Brooks in Buena Vista street. The members entertained their husbands and a few friends and the banquet was served at 8 o'clock.

The rooms of the Brooks home were arranged with a great number of pennants while the banquet room was in pink, that being the club color. The table was centered with candelabra filled with pink candles, while individual candles in the same shade were used. A delicious four course menu was served, following which a very interesting program was given: Recitation—Geneva Frye. Vocal solo—Mrs. Thurman Tower. Violin solo—Clotilde Howard, accompanied by Olive Howard. Medley—Mrs. Frank Agnew. Instrumental duet—Mrs. Lower and Mrs. Frye.

Vocal solo—Mrs. Dunlap. Reading—Mrs. W. S. Seymour. Vocal solo—Olive Howard. The program concluded with the singing of "America" and "Home, Sweet Home."

The guests of the club were Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Russell, Mr. and Mrs. Wolford, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Mitchell, Misses Annabelle Conrad, Clotilde and Olive Howard, Geneva Frye, Messrs. Homer Glancy, Russell Tower, and Mr. Jason Wooley and daughter Katherine of Columbus, and Mrs. Dunlap of Canal Dover.

The club members present were Messrs. and Mesdames Frank Agnew, William Alspach, S. D. Brooks, F. J. Cogley, Clifford Frye, Henry Henthorne, E. M. Howard, D. B. Hunt, Charles Long, Frank Mahurd, F. A. Deedham, Ned Sberburne, D. W. Stevenson, Thurman Tower, Mrs. P. J. Glancy, and Mrs. W. S. Seymour.

The event of the annual banquet of the Harmonious club Thursday evening held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Whitehead in West Church street, was a most delightful one. Mrs. Murray DeFrance in a pleasing manner assisted the hostess in receiving the guests. The home was very prettily decorated with the club's colors, pink and white, together with large bouquets of flowers, which added much to the charm of the occasion. At 8 o'clock the guests were ushered into the banquet rooms and seated by elaborate place cards at small tables to which were attached pink ribbons extending to a larger candelabra entwined with smilax. An elaborate four course dinner was served, after which Mrs. Chas. Cooper and Mrs. M. Davis dispensed punch.

Contests were engaged in during the evening, the favors going to Miss Hazel Athey, Mrs. Charles Keller, Mr. Eugene Hartshorn and Mr. J. E. Brunner. Miss Athey sang a solo in a charming manner.

The guests and members were:

Messrs. and Mesdames T. E. Adams, George Baker, J. E. Brunner, M. Connelly, Charles Cooper, M. Davis, M. DeFrance, J. E. Evans, Eugene Hartshorn, Otto Ramey, W. Shamp, Charles Whitehead, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Keller, Dr. and Mrs. Med Miller, Mrs. Jenny Johns, M. Delbert Adams, Miss Hazel Athey, Mrs. Evans, Edworth Agila, and Frederic Newman.

Thursday, January 23rd marked another mile stone in the life of Mr. Charles Root of the domestic department of the Meyer & Lindorf store. Thinking to informally celebrate the event, Mr. Root invited "his" assistants in the department to dinner at his home that evening. The remainder of the employees of the store, who were not invited, decided to take the matter in their own hands and after the invited guests had left Mr. Root was called to the door only to be confronted by all his co-workers in the store.

The self-invited guests were en masse and it was some time before the surprised host could identify the invaders. The evening was merrily spent with games and music and a delicious luncheon was served. One of the features of the evening was the vocal solo given by Mr. Stephens.

The Monday Talks will meet next Monday with Mrs. W. S. Wright of North Fifth street.

The Gibbons Literary circle was entertained by Misses Anna and Veronica Stare at their home in North Fifth street, Monday evening. The following program was given:

Current Events—Anna Stare. Robert Southwell, His Life Poetry—Mary Adams. Reading, "The Rhine," Stoddard—The Members.

Mrs. J. D. Keely entertained the Extension club at her home in South Fifth street on Friday evening. The Extension club is a new movement and all funds derived from its meetings are forwarded to the priests of various parishes, where there is need of more churches.

Fifteen tables participated in the game of euchre and the souvenirs were awarded to Mrs. Keely and Miss Katherine Shaugnessy and Mr. Miller and Mr. Stamb.

The Commercial class of St. Francis de Sales school and a number of friends of Miss Eva Winters gave her a very pleasant surprise at her home in South Third street, Wednesday evening. The evening was spent in games and music and at a late hour refreshments were served.

The guests were: Misses Anna Cross, Elynn Bradley, Helen Talbot, Mary Gilmore, Anna McCarthy, Grace Stasel, Nellie Gorman, Margaret Bradley, Mary Keely, Maye Winters, Messrs. James Grady, Ernest Lieber, Edward Schimpf, John Calahan, Joe Gainer, Sam Kuhn, John Gilbert, Kenneth Koos, William Schopen, Ambrose McCarthy, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Winters, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Winters.

The General Federation of Women's Clubs, with its membership of more than a million, is undoubtedly the most potent organization of women in the United States, a fact increasingly recognized, as witness the numerous current magazine articles dealing with its work and aims.

There are wheels within the wheels in the General Federation, and therein lies one of its strong points. The forty-eight State Federations, each with its own admirably organized activities, feel themselves component parts of the great national body, as does every one of the six thousand clubs, no matter how small, holding individual membership, and from this splendid co-ordination results a certain consciousness of power and a dignity that separate and detached organizations must lack.

A newspaper woman has lately interviewed various persons officially connected with State and General Federations, relative to some phases of club activity, and her report is interesting. Among those interviewed were Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick, president of the Georgia Federation, which is typical of the best club activity of the South; and Mrs. Frederick A. Dow, president of the Illinois Federation, one of the largest and most wide-awake of the State organizations in the North. By the way, both of these women agree that one of the best effects of woman's clubs is the growing tendency to obliterate sectional lines in the service of altruistic ends.

NORTHEAST DISTRICT MEETING.
The North-east District meeting, Mrs. W. K. Schutt, Vice-president, which was held in Cleveland last Tuesday, January 22—the first meeting held in this district in seven years—was a great success. Delegates were present from Steubenville, Kent, Warren, Youngstown, Conneaut, Coshocton, Lorain, Oberlin, Elvira, Alliance, Willoughby, Ash-tahula and Garrettsville. More than five hundred women were in attendance and the reports of work being done in their communities were most enthusiastically received.

Lorain reported a federation one month old—with a membership of forty clubs. Greetings were extended by Mrs. A. L. Bishon, Vice-President Cleveland City Federation, after which Miss Anna B. Johnson, the new state president gave a most inspiring and interesting address—giving in detail the many activities of the clubs of the Federation, showing the phenomenal increase in numbers and influence, and stating most clearly the policy of the new administration to be one of progression and expansion along consistent and conservative lines.

The delegates were charmed with Miss Johnson's dignified but most gracious personality, and her clear grasp of the momentous affairs of ters. The out of town guests were: Miss Marguerite Richards of Chicago, Mrs. Emmett Gould of Pittsburgh, Pa. and Walter Gaffney of Steubenville.

Miss Amy Cochran was delightfully surprised last evening with a miscellaneous shower at the home of her sister, Mrs. Walter Stage, in Poplar avenue. The hours were spent in contests, Amy Cochran and Mary Long receiving the prizes.

With Ohio Club Women

Conducted by Mrs. Charles S. Rockhill, Chairman of the Publicity Department of the Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs.

The State Federation bringing hearty response to her plea for cooperation. A very fine address by Dr. E. A. Peterson, Director of Recreation, of C. followed, after which Mrs. Fulton H. Smith gave a report of the Loan Scholarship Fund.

One of the most interesting features of the Convention were the reports of club activities from all over the district; reports of the work of the several city federations being particularly interesting.

The features of the afternoon session were a very fine lecture by Miss Clara Myers, of the Cleveland College for Women on the new Irish Literature and Drama, and a reading by Miss Margaret McKwon, followed by a charming vocal solo rendered by Miss Adella Tallen.

A splendid meeting of the Cleveland City Federation was held the following day, February 21, with a large number in attendance. At the morning session reports of the standing committees, and special committees were read—followed by an address by Miss Johnson, state president.

The luncheon arranged in honor of Miss Johnson was very largely attended, more than four hundred and fifty being present. Miss Johnson acted as toastmistress and proved to be quite as efficient in this capacity as in other directions. Her introductions to the following toasts were most illuminating:

The Federation. Mrs. Howard Hocking: The Vision of the Early Days. Mrs. C. E. Porter: The Federation and Patriotism. Mrs. C. E. Tostler: The Value of Bubbles. Mrs. J. A. Foster: The Yesterdays. Mrs. Frank Kraft: Our Growing Pain. Mrs. H. W. Swift: The Todays. Mrs. C. W. Aldrich: Rainbows. Mrs. L. L. Royce: The Tomorrows. Mrs. W. E. Schutt.

A number of social functions were arranged for Miss Johnson during her stay in Cleveland and on all sides were heard expressions of admiration and approval of the new president.

The Northeast district has received through this splendid meeting new impetus toward greater achievements.

LITTLE DISCUSSIONS OF LOVE AND MARRIAGE

BY BARBARA BOYD

The Love System for Child Training.

"Marriage opens up a great many avenues to unhappiness, doesn't it?" mused the Bachelor Girl.
"It opens more to happiness, I guess," responded the Bachelor.
"I am not so sure of that," objected the Bachelor Girl. "I was talking to a friend of mine today, and she said her hair was growing gray because of her three children."

"What is the matter with them?"
"They are so bad. They are disobedient and untruthful and lazy—about everything, I guess, they shouldn't be. She can't do a thing with them. She doesn't believe in correcting them, you know. She says she believes in ruling them entirely by love. And she is just worried to death at the things they do."

"I don't think her course shows love," expostulated the Bachelor. "I think it shows self-indulgence, perhaps really selfishness. She may have wanted to spare herself the effort to train them. It is no easy matter to train children, you know. But true love considers the other's good, and it is certainly their good to be taught to be truthful and industrious and to have the other qualities necessary to happiness and success in life, even if it is work to bring them up in this way."

"I tried to tell her something of this sort, but she said she always wanted them to think of her as expressing nothing but love, that she never wanted them to have a single memory of her that was harsh or painful."

"That shows she is thinking of herself and not of them. And besides, when they grow up and find they lack self-control, that they hate work, in fact, that they have habits that will make life hard for them, unless they themselves root these habits out and make themselves over, don't you think they will then blame her and think bitterly of her?"

"That's the reason I say marriage has so many avenues of unhappiness."

"It isn't marriage that makes the unhappiness," responded the Bachelor earnestly. "It is what may lie in the nature of those entering it. This woman has the trait within herself that has brought this trouble upon her. If she had trained these children to show the true, beautiful self that is in each she would have had a little heaven upon earth."

"But she thinks she is being actuated entirely by love," insisted the Bachelor Girl.
"She could correct them lovingly and tenderly, so that they would always remember her corrections with love, and with thanks also, that these handicaps had been taken from them. True love doesn't shut its eyes to faults, but helps cast them out; so that the one loved can grow into the perfect individuality that is rightfully his or hers. Don't blame marriage for unhappiness like that. But put the blame where it lies. If her children were the sort of children they should be and could be, think what wonderful avenues of happiness they would open for her."

The Bachelor Girl looked serious. "I thought myself she was in the wrong. But it certainly is no joke to train children, is it?"

"It certainly isn't. Anything that is worth while takes the best that is in one. But that is what makes life interesting—rolling up one's sleeves and going at worth-while things. That is the reason I am in such dead earnest about one certain thing. I consider it decidedly worth while."

"Well you know I always did like persistent people," teased the Bachelor Girl.

LICKING FAIR WILL BE HELD SEPT. 29 TO OCT. 2

Members of the Licking County Agricultural society met in special session in the society's quarters in the Trust building Saturday afternoon and voted to hold the next annual Licking County Fair on September 29 and 30 and October 1 and 2.
Consideration for the support of neighboring counties and a desire to continue the friendly relations and co-operation that have existed with its neighbors, prompted the society to abandon the tentative dates of October 6, 7, 8 and 9.
President J. J. Hill of Johnstown, president, and Secretary E. M. Larson served in his new position. There was a good attendance and a number of talks were made during discussion of fair dates.

52 BURIAL PERMITS ISSUED THIS MONTH BY HEALTH OFFICER

The mortality rate in Newark has been unusually heavy since the first of January, records at the office of the health department showing that 47 deaths had occurred in the city up to noon Friday. This does not include a number who lived but a few hours after birth and infants still born.
Fifty two burial permits have been issued but in a number of cases, death occurred in cities other than Newark, the bodies being brought to Newark for interment.
There were a number of accidental deaths during the month, including five victims of the Kern fire and several victims of accidental death on the railroads.

EXAMINERS END INSPECTION OF COUNTY RECORDS

W. F. Bowen and H. B. Sage, representatives of the department of the state examiner, who have been here for four months examining the books and records of transactions in Licking county offices, concluded their work Saturday. Not even an unofficial inkling of the contents of the report that will be filed with the state auditor was known to local officials. This is in accord with instructions under which the examiners work, however.
Examiner Bowen went to his home in Columbus, and Examiner Sage to his home in McArthur, Vinton county.

Second Team Loses Game To Thornville

Thornville, Jan. 31.—Newark High's second team was defeated last evening at the local hall, after a hard fought battle. The smallness of the hall had a great deal to do with the Newark score. The first quarter was easy playing for Newark. The basket shooting of Dickerson in that period was remarkable. The second quarter Thornville, with the help of points won on fouls and a play that was hard for Newark to solve scored 11 points. The last half Newark played with determination and scored the same as Thornville, each team scoring 10 points. The final score was 31 to 20. The lineup follows:
Thornville Hi. Newark Hi.
Lynn L. F. Spencer
Foster R. F. Ryan
Amsbach C. Dickerson
Yost L. G. Young
Heleser R. G. Huffman
Field goals—Amsbach, 9; Lynn, 3; Foster, 2; Dickerson, 8; Huffman, 1; Spencer 1.
Fouls—Amsbach, 3.
Referee—Strain of Thornville.
Officials—Chase and McLaughlin.

First Things

The first city charter of Milwaukee was accepted sixty-eight years ago today, when the municipality since famous for its breweries and its socialistic experiments became, at least, a full-fledged city. Milwaukee was founded in 1818 by Solomon Juneau, a French-Canadian fur-trader. At the time of its incorporation as a city it had a population of about 10,000, in three separate villages: Juneau, Walker's Point and Kilmount. There was much rivalry between the three villages, each demanding that its name be adopted for the city, but the dispute was finally settled by the adoption of the name of Milwaukee. The granting of the charter was celebrated with a torchlight procession. The last day of January is annually celebrated in Milwaukee as "charter day," and the national flag is displayed on all public buildings. The first newspaper in Milwaukee was founded in 1836, and its first railroad, the Milwaukee and Waukesha, was chartered in 1847, the first train leaving Milwaukee in 1851.
In these days of big libraries it seems odd to spread the news that a collection of books at Princeton has been brought up to eight volumes. But they are all early books on America Vesputi, which makes many industrial firms in Germany provide their workmen square pieces of cloth for cleaning purposes instead of the cotton waste that is usual there. The scheme has the advantage of economy.

throughout Central Ohio with the steady drop in temperature from the spring-like weather of two days ago.

Worley and Frank Amptach. A "hike" to Flint Ridge, Ford is an Indian from the Carlisle school who is temporarily in the employ of the Lubin Film company of Philadelphia. Chicago, Jan. 31.—Heavy snow today throughout the eastern half of the winter crop held pulled down the price of wheat. The reason was the absence of snow protection for autumn sown crops has of late been one of the chief supports of the market. Predictions of large winter shipments, especially from Russia, tended also to lower the wheat market. General 1-8

THE CONGRESS WANTS TO AID THE FARMERS

Washington, Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Every year congress does more and more for the farmer. The appropriations for the agricultural department have increased in the past twenty years from $2,000,000 to $20,000,000, all in the interest of farmers, although a large portion of the sum has gone into scientific bureaus, weather service, traveling expenses, inspection service and a lot more side issues which only incidentally affect the farmer.

But more and more interest is paid to the farmer. Legislation in the interest of the farmer receives more consideration than formerly. More members of congress talk about doing something for the agriculturalist and mean it than ever before. Legislation for the farmer in the future, as in the past, will benefit a lot of individual workers who know how to get the most out of appropriations, but at the same time the legislation will be for the benefit of the agricultural class.

If They Would Organize.
If the farmers could organize as the labor unions they would have congress "knotting" to them. It is true that in spite of the fact that only about 2,000,000 labor men are organized, they get just about what they want in the way of legislation. At least, they get a great deal more than congress wants to grant them, and all because they have the organized voters in various congressional districts.

Farmers once undertook to organize as an alliance. Grange organizations have often tried to speak for the farmers to congress, but it will take an organization which stands firm, pulls together and votes to have effect.

Have the Information.
It was just after the president's message had been delivered on the trust question, and Murdock of Kansas was questioning Chairman Adamson of the interstate commerce committee.

"Will you have hearings?" asked Murdock.
"I can't say yet," replied Adamson. "With all the messages, bills, reports, letters, documents, etc., which we have not yet read and digested, it may be that we will have information enough to proceed without giving hearings."

And the house seemed to acquiesce, for the members know that if the committees ever begin hearings on the trust question there will be no possible adjournment until late in the fall.

Doing the Impossible.
"It always amuses me," said Congressman Butler of Pennsylvania, "to hear a man get up in the house, when five or ten minutes have been given him, and begin by saying, 'It will be impossible for me in the limited time at my disposal to discuss this momentous question,' and then go right along and discuss it. The chances are that he will be given leave to extend his remarks in the Record, with the result that we will see several pages of elaborate discussion of the subject which he could not discuss in the limited time at his disposal! We play many bunco games in congress."

"Senatorial Courtesy"
A senator was talking about the Alaska bill last week. He was a man who was supposed to have knowledge of the subject. He spoke from the Republican side; there was a group of half a dozen Republicans in the back part of the hall talking among themselves. Not a single seat on the Democratic side was occupied. And yet there is talk of "senatorial courtesy." It does not always apply in the senate.

The Speaker's Position.
Replying to a complaint in the house that many measures did not receive consideration, Speaker Clark took the floor and pointed out the different methods by which a bill could be brought before the house. Telling what he thought the speaker should do, he said: "If I believe there is a pronounced sentiment in the house in favor of any bill, amounting to a majority or anywhere near two-thirds of the house, I will recognize a member to call up that bill under suspension of the rules."

If any man has a two-thirds majority for his bill the suspension of the rules method is the surest way of getting action in the house. It is quick, and no chance to amend the bill is given.

Is It Socialism?
Democrats and Republicans denounced the Alaska railroad bill as socialism. Owning and operating railroads, is that socialism? Congressman Switzer, an Ohio Republican, criticizing the president, said:

"From where comes this sudden demand for adopting the socialist stunt? We know that our president is running a neck and neck race with the great leader of the Bull Moose party to put over certain so-called Progressive measures, regardless of the fact that the Democratic platform does not call for government ownership of railroads."

WONDERFUL COUGH REMEDY.
Dr. King's New Discovery is known everywhere as the remedy which will surely stop a cough or cold. D. P. Lawson of Eldon, Tenn., writes: "Dr. King's New Discovery is the most wonderful cough, cold and throat and lung medicine I ever sold in my store. It can't be beat. It sells without any trouble at all. It needs no guarantee." This is true, because Dr. King's New Discovery will relieve the most obstinate of coughs and colds. Long troubles quickly helped by its use. You should keep a bottle in the house at all times for all the members of the family. 50c and $1.00. Recommended by Frank D. Hall.

Playing one of the leading roles in Gene Station Porter's Famous Song Play "Freckles". Auditorium Tonight.

ber thieves," are scenes which will not be soon forgotten. The play is great in its simplicity, and the story is an estimable example in the value of doing right, against all temptation; that right is might and endures. Delamater's great scenic production, with an exceptionally strong cast will be the attraction at the Auditorium tonight.

"The Thief."
Everybody, that is everybody who reads and thinks or hears theatrical things knows that "The Thief," which appears at the Auditorium next Saturday matinee and night with Miss Janet Allyn in the leading role, is a great play. "The Thief" is a gripping, human story of intimate relations, the kind of happenings that everyone is likely to encounter. The relations are everyday ones, the loves are everyday ones. There are the relations of the four old friends who are married and understand each other. There are the husband and wife loves and father and son love and the silly, futile little hopeless passion of the boy for woman and so on throughout the list. It is a lesson for husbands; it is a lesson for wives and above all a lesson for maids and bachelors.

"Mutt and Jeff."
Music of the lilt kind, pretty girls, a play that is bound to interest as well as thrill, songs that appeal, surprises and lots of novelities are promised in the latest "Mutt and Jeff" series of stage entertainments, entitled "Mutt and Jeff in Panama," which will be a large attraction at the Auditorium. This season Manager Gus Hill has surrounded Bud Fisher's popular cartoon creations with an entirely new setting and one calculated to make theater-goers sit up and take notice. The most beloved and withal admired of all humorous cartoon characters are to appear in what must be termed a musical comedy with melodramatic trimmings. They are more ubiquitous than ever and their adventures are attended with the most mirthful and side-splitting results. For three acts and three scenes they dominate things, making life one merry song and whirl and winding up where they left off, a couple of neer-do-wells, who find this mundane sphere a place where sorrow and dull care have no right to obtain. Owen Davis is the author with Will H. Cobb and Leo Edwards responsible for the "words" and "tunes".

Today in Pugilistic Annals

1913—Johnny Mathieson defeated Dixie Kid in 20 rounds at London. Once a champion, Dixie is now far on the downward grade, and Mathieson is only one of many second and third rate scrappers who have whipped him during the last year or two. Dixie Kid has been fighting in France and England for so long that most American fans have forgotten him, although he was the recognized welterweight champion of the world from 1904 to 1908. He is the last to hold that honor, as since the crown dropped from his kinky dome, there has been no bona fide claimant. In 1911 Dixie was good enough to score a clean victory over Georges Carpentier. Dixie's last bout was with Bandsman Blake, the English middleweight champion, and he went the full route of 20 rounds, although Blake won on points.

1911—Frank Klaus and Jimmy Gardier fought a 12-round draw at Boston.

1913—Young Britt defeated Monte Attell in 15 rounds at Baltimore.

1913—Harry Lewis knocked out Jerry Thompson in the 14th round at Liverpool.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

Grandma kept her locks dark, glossy and thick with a simple mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's treatment, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we won't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive; besides, prevents dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair. MAGNIFICENT SETTING FOR ELK MINSTREL

The members of the Elk minstrel committee, Messrs H. D. Hale, Jay Cooper and Bernie Wingerter have completed all arrangements for the big Elk minstrel on Thursday and Friday evenings, Feb. 19 and 20. The show this year will be better and bigger than ever and will consist of the finest mounted first part ever witnessed in Central Ohio, the first part setting with costumes and electrical effects representing an outlay of over $5,000, the same having been contracted for by the committee from one of the best known costume houses in the country, Edward D. Hutchinson of Columbus and Chicago.

The first part will represent a colonial scene in the south, a reception being given by Newark lodge of Elks. There will be drills and marches and fun galore, concluding with the latest tango dance. The electrical effects will be magnificent and the costumes will be the finest ever seen on a local stage.

The olio will consist of five acts, all of which will be very enjoyable and staged in a manner in keeping with the first part. The show will be preceded by a parade in which the Buckeye band of twenty pieces will participate.

The box office will open on Monday morning, Feb. 17, at 9 o'clock and each person in line will be entitled to reserve ten seats. Secure your tickets and have them ready as the house will undoubtedly be sold out for both performances.

The Public Health Exhibit on the second floor and in Taylor Hall is attracting much attention. During the afternoons and evenings there has been a continuous stream of visitors. Taylor hall has not held the evening crowds.

Twenty boys were present at the Bible supper and study on Tuesday evening. A picture of the group was taken by Prof. Dickerson of the High school. Assistant Secretary Leo Bayles is beginning to plan for the summer camp for boys. Those interested should inquire of him concerning it. Physical Director Roberts saw the basketball game between Denison and Miami on Thursday evening.

The Christian Men's Union advisory committee held a business session in the building Tuesday evening. Matters relating to the future meetings of the organization were discussed.

The members express their sympathy for Orville Rawlins and Merle Orr, who have been confined to their homes with the mumps.

One hundred and forty-nine boys attended the last Sunday Boys' meeting. Rev. W. D. Ward spoke and the Billy Sunday Special film was shown. The speaker tomorrow will be Rev. C. G. Hazlett. A new moving picture machine will be on trial. The boys' orchestra will play.

High School Notes

The Washington Times of January 25 has an article concerning the National School of Domestic Arts and Sciences where three former Newark High school young ladies are attending school, Mildred Robe, Camille Windle and Bernice Wintermute. The article states that a special envoy of the French Republic who was sent to this country to study economic conditions, has pronounced the National School of Domestic Arts and Sciences as the best school of its kind in the United States.

The Thalian Literary society is to present a play, "Cranford," in two weeks for the benefit of the public library. This should appeal to all of the citizens of the city. Miss Madge Lindsay is assisting the girls in their work and the cause is a very worthy one. The High school trusts that the auditorium will be sold out long before the evening of the production, February 13.

On Wednesday and Thursday evenings the final debates were held to select the eight debaters to meet Mr. Vernon and Zanesville. The result was the following: J. Dale McNamur, Paulding Forry, Leland Stevenson, Grace Doyle, Blanche Porter, Lou Ella Hawkins, Robert Wilkin, Florence Dushlimer. Mr. Chalmers Packard of the High school faculty has charge of the training of these debaters.

Both the first and second basketball teams left for Delaware and Thornville respectively yesterday afternoon to play last evening. The next game is to be played here with Mt. Vernon next Friday evening.

The Junior Board of Trade met in Room 5 Thursday evening to discuss problems relating to city life. At the conclusion of the meeting a flashlight picture of the group was taken.

Mr. E. V. Bowers, who was absent because of the serious illness of his mother, returned to his work last Monday. His mother is slowly recovering.

Dr. George D. Strayer of Columbia University gave two addresses before the city teachers yesterday afternoon. Dr. Strayer's book, "The Teaching Process," is one of the Reading Circle books this year and consequently his coming took on an added interest.

Thursday afternoon the high school had a treat in the lecture by Mr. Campbell of the Commission for the Blind, who was in Newark in connection with the Health Exhibit. His talk was on the care of the eyes. He had with him Mr. Kellog, the blind pianist, who played some of his own composition.

Thursday after school, some men representing the Heinz firm of Pittsburgh, gave a demonstration of their wares to about one hundred and fifty pupils and teachers in the Domestic Science department. The next number of the lecture course will be given next Monday evening when Miss Maud Wilmer will read the Christian play, "The Sign of the Cross."

The art students of the high school under the direction of Miss Edith McCoy, have made the posters for the play the Thalian girls are to give.

First Policewoman is a Suffragette

Mrs. Alice S. Wells, California's first policewoman, who is one of several female bluecoats in Los Angeles, believes that suffrage for women will solve the servant girl problem.

"Just give the girls a chance to vote," said she, "and it will dignify their work so they will be willing to go into the kitchen."

Mrs. Wells admitted that few American girls wanted to work in kitchens, but she thought that due largely to the fact that women could not vote.

"CASCARETS" FINE FOR THE BOWELS

The millions of Cascaret users never have Headache, Constipation, Biliousness or Sick Stomach.

Get a 10-cent box now. Are you keeping your liver, stomach and bowels clean, pure and fresh with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passage every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excessive bile from the liver and carry out of the system the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels.

No odds how sick, headachy, bilious and constipated you feel, a Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from your drugist will keep your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a gentle cleansing, too.

Significance of Little Things.

We love little things. We hate little things. We fear little things. Our lives are knit up with little things from the time we are born to the day we die.

Big things draw us up to heaven or crush us down to hades. Little things live beside us on the earth, eat and sleep with us, laugh and grumble with us, catch the early train with us or make us miss it, irritate and appease us—never leave us alone for a minute.

That is why they are so much more important than the big things—the things that come only once in a way at long intervals, and even then are nearly always the result of a hundred and one little things combined.

To be crushed by a large misadventure is natural, but to fall a victim to a series of petty misfortunes is humiliating. There are many who would prefer to break their necks once and for all by falling off a mountain than to bruise their whole bodies and dislocate their tempers by the daily stumblings over a molehill. It is the little things that count. The satisfaction of climbing Mount Olympus is a poor sort of attainment if the scores and scores of pleasant details which wait upon success be absent.—Atlantic.

GATHERING RUBBER.

The flow of rubber from the rubber trees is even slower than molasses in winter. The supply, tons of it, must be gathered patiently drop by drop. The utmost care must be taken to have the tree yield its maximum supply without injury to its growth. The bark is cut skillfully, and the rubber gradually oozes out from the incision and is coaxed into a receptacle at the base. The method of cutting the tree is shown in the accompanying photograph. The picture was taken in a large grove in the island of Trinidad by one of the party of tourists who visited the island on a recent cruise of the Hamburg-American liner Victoria Luise. The native rubber gatherer is coaxed the precious drops of rubber along the incision with a long sharp rod. The tree is visited each day and the incisions carefully widened. Slow as this method of collecting rubber seems to be, it is the only plan which enables the tree to continue to bear.

Not Sharing Interests.

"I wonder why," the Bachelor Girl was saying, "that some men shut their wives completely out of their business. They never let their wives get even so much as a peep into their business life, and a man's business is usually the biggest part of his life—and so a wife is excluded from, by far, the larger part of her husband's life. So that in reality a wife only shares in a small fraction of her husband's life, just a wee bit corner. It seems to me not only not fair, but the two miss a lot."

"Lots of wives shut their husbands out of the house-keeping end of their lives," responded the Bachelor. "And this is just as big a part of a woman's life as business is of a man's. And many a woman does more. She not only shuts her husband out of the actual working campaign of the housekeeping, just as a husband may shut his wife out of the humdrum details of his business; but she shuts him out of many of the benefits of their housekeeping."

"How could she do that?" expostulated the Bachelor Girl. "The home isn't like a business office. In his office she is almost on the footing of a stranger. She really hasn't the freedom there of his stenographer. But he can do as he pleases in his home, and have what he wants."

"Oh, can he?" cynically exclaimed the Bachelor. "I happen to know one case, at least, that is otherwise. This friend of mine and his wife celebrated a wedding anniversary sometime ago—the fifteenth, I think. Any way, they got a lot of glass. Their home fairly shimmered and sparkled with cut glass. Their sideboard was loaded with it and their china closet was full of it. But would she use it? Not a bit of it. Dick is awfully fond of the stuff and he would say, 'Let's use the tumblers.' But she would object, 'I am afraid the maid will break them when they wash them.' 'Why can't we use this bowl?' he would petition. 'Oh, it'll get broken.' And so it went. They had a dozen or so salt and pepper shakers, and actually, she wouldn't use one of them for fear of its being damaged. I know them well, and I have often been there to dinner when they had these little arguments about the cut glass. In a way, that stuff was as much his as hers. Yet he was completely cut out from enjoying it just by a whim of hers. I fixed her though," and he smiled reminiscently.

"How?" laughed the Bachelor Girl.

"One time she was quite sick. I was taken up to see her, and as I sat there chatting, I said jokingly, 'What a fine time your husband's second wife will have using that cut glass.' By Jove! She wasn't any time getting well, and now when I'm there to a meal, my eyes are fairly blinded with the glitter of the cut glass on the table."

The Bachelor Girl laughed. "But it is rather a mean reason for using it, isn't it?" she mused. "It would be ever so much nicer to use it just for the joy of using it together and delighting in its beauty. Seems to me in marriage there is as much joy in sharing things as in just being together. I should think she would want to give him, in the home, everything she could to make him comfortable and happy; and also that he would share his business with her, so that she might enter into every bit of his life."

"That would be an ideal way to live," observed the Bachelor. "Don't you think so?"

"Possibly," admitted the Bachelor Girl.

"Let's put it to the test."

But the Bachelor Girl was absorbed in hunting for a certain article in a magazine she wanted him to read, and paid no heed to his suggestion.

Our sympathy goes out to them and we hope by our next meeting they will be able to fill their places, for those only who are regular in attendance are reaping the benefit of the splendid instruction our president, Mrs. Emma D. Hickman, is giving in the floor work. The Daughters are active in helping the comrades of the G. A. R. who are going to put on the show "The Generals". Monday evening, Feb. 2, at the Auditorium. ROWLAND LODGE K. OF P.

The last meeting of Rowland lodge, No. 305, K. of P., was notable for the large number present, the attendance being the best for some time. The applications are still coming in, five more being received at this meeting. This makes and even thirty who are eligible for the Knight rank on the evening of February 17. This large class was gotten up in honor of the golden jubilee of the order, which was founded Feb. 19, 1864, in Washington, D. C. The Page rank was conferred upon five candidates, and the Esquire rank upon two Pages. The same degrees will probably be conferred at our next meeting.

The next event in importance after the jubilee celebration will be the turkey supper to be given in March to all brothers bringing in applications the past couple of months. There is still room at the table for a number of others who have promised to be there but have not yet received the necessary passport. A word to the wise is sufficient.

Our lodge deputy, Bro. H. S. Kirkpatrick, who is privileged to use the somewhat euphonious affix, D. O. C. when writing his name, was present at the official count of the votes cast in the recent Grand Lodge election. This is an honor to Brother Kirkpatrick and also to Rowland lodge. He was invited to remain for the banquet and D. O. K. K. doing in the evening, but had to forego those pleasures.

DELAWARE WINS FROM NEWARK IN BASKETBALL GAME

Delaware, Jan. 31.—Delaware High won from Newark High here last night 43 to 23. The visitors also were outclassed from the start, and Delaware tried out several men. Walters played a spectacular game during his short stay in the contest. The Newark boys were like cats in a strange garret on the big floor in the University gymnasium. The floor is three times as large as the Newark floor and the locals played under a serious handicap as a result. Stephan played Bowers, Delaware's star center, to a standstill and was the bright star in the Newark lineup. Walters and Reid were the individual stars for Delaware.

Lineup:

Delaware—43. Newark—23.

Reid L. F. Summers

Perry, Walters,

Bower R. F. Warner

Bower, Dennison C. Stephan, Rawlings.

Thompson L. G. F. Jones

Heiches, S. Jones R. G. Rhodes, Esterday.

Field goals—Reid, 6; Perry, 1; Bower, 4; Thompson, 3; Walters, 7; Summers, 3; Warner, 2; Stephan, 4; F. Jones, 1.

TAKEN ILL AT FUNERAL, DIES AT SANITARIUM

Taken suddenly ill with a complication of pneumonia and pleurisy at the funeral of her sister-in-law, Mrs. George Woodcock, 16 Pataskala street, last Monday, Mrs. W. H. Parkison, of Columbus died in the Newark sanitarium Friday afternoon. During the Woodcock funeral Mrs. Parkison was taken so seriously ill that she was compelled to go to a neighbor's home where she remained until an ambulance conveyed her to the sanitarium.

The family had taken encouragement from reports of her condition Thursday and early Friday, but shortly after noon her condition was noticeably critical and she lapsed into unconsciousness which continued until her death.

Mrs. Parkison's home is in 643 Stanley avenue, Columbus. Her husband, conducts a cigar and news stand at the intersection of Swan and High streets. She was 54 years of age and is survived by the husband and four children, living at home. The children are Emma, 32; John, 26; Will, 24, and Grace 22.

The body was removed to "Crisis Bros." undertaking parlors, prepared for internment, and was shipped to Columbus Saturday forenoon, where the funeral will be held Monday at 2 o'clock.

CHIEF WIRELESS OPERATOR AGED 20, DIED HERO'S DEATH

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

New York, Jan. 31.—Ferdinand Kuehn, chief wireless operator on board the liner Monroe, who took off his own life preserver and strapped it around a woman just as the steamer Monroe started to sink early yesterday, lived with his parents in the Bronx. Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Kuehn, and his 12-year-old sister, Victoria. The father is a furrier. All day yesterday friends of the family called to ask for news and offer encouragement to the grief stricken parents.

Mrs. Kuehn's fears were increased because she said she always had had a premonition that something would happen to her son if he remained at sea.

From Mrs. Kuehn it was learned that Ferdinand was only 20 years old. He became interested in electro-mechanics when a pupil in high school in the Bronx. As a school boy he had learned the principles of wireless telegraphy sufficiently to rig up an apparatus of his own at his home.

It was with this home-made apparatus that he learned telegraphy. His experience was sufficient to induce the Marconi company to accept the application for a place about three years ago. Not long after his employment he was assigned to the steamship Jefferson of the Old Dominion line. When that vessel was laid up for repairs more than a month ago, Young Kuehn was transferred to the Monroe. This was his second trip on her.

LICKING ESCAPES SMALLPOX OTHER COUNTIES HAVE IT

Newark and Licking county have been particularly fortunate in the past few weeks in escaping small pox cases. Every county bordering on Licking has had an epidemic of more or less serious character within the past six weeks but no cases in Licking county have been reported to the health department here.

Health officials declare that this fact should lead Licking county officials to be more cautious than ever to guard against bringing the disease into the county after visiting other localities. Every case of chickenpox or anything resembling this disease should be watched closely and reported promptly as it is often the case that one is diagnosed as the other.

The local department is watching carefully to guard against a probable outbreak of the disease and every case of chickenpox reported is observed closely.

SURVIVORS OF THE STEAMER MONROE REACH NEW YORK

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

New York, Jan. 31.—Six survivors of the disaster to the steamship Monroe reached here early today over the Pennsylvania railroad from Norfolk. Among them was Thomas Harrington, of Bridgeport, Conn., accompanying the body of his wife, who died after being taken aboard the rescue ship Nantucket. Representatives of the Old Dominion liner met the survivors here and aided them in every way possible.

Harrington was the passenger who swam in the cold water, supporting his wife by holding her hair in his teeth. "I am too weak to talk," he said. "All that I know is that my wife is dead."

Mr. Harrington was on his way to Norwalk, Conn., where his wife's parents reside.

Harrington's father, Joseph, and his brother, Joseph Jr., met him here. "Tell them what happened, Tom," said the father.

"We all want to know and it will get it off your mind."

Then in a dull monotone the young man told his story. Harrington and his wife had a stateroom on the side where the Monroe was rammed.

BIG ROUNDUP OF ALL CRIMINALS IN PHILADELPHIA

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

Philadelphia, Jan. 31.—In an effort to clear this city of yeggmen, highway robbers, second story men and other criminals, a special squad of police early today swept through the tenderloin district and arrested about 150 men. No women were taken into custody, but alleged dealers in cocaine, white slaves and others who the police say have varied records were among those captured.

All the prisoners were given a hearing later in the day and it was expected that detectives from New York would be on hand to identify any gunmen from that city who might be included among those taken in the roundup.

ADVERTISER COMPLIMENTS THE ADVOCATE

Mr. Serodino manager of Henry Beckman's Sample Shoe store sends the following letter to the Advocate today.

The Advocate, Newark, O.

Mr. Spencer:

Notice enclosed clipping from your paper of advertisement run January 16th. This was given us this morning with the comment that a pair of shoes like the ad. was wanted. We have tried in various ways to key our advertisements and in this particular case had excellent success with this ad. That the Advocate adds prestige to its advertisers is seen from this clipping that has been taken from an old paper and not presented until 14 days later. Thought you might like to hear of the way your subscribers felt toward their advertisers when they remember an advertisement and save a clipping from it for fourteen days. This cannot be construed any other way than the Advocate is a medium for advertising that pulls long after the individual advertisements are forgotten by the advertisers.

Your truly,
HENRY BECKMAN,
H. SERADINO, Mgr.
